

I am writing due to concerns over the changes being proposed that would allow LPFM stations to have priority over FM translated stations. Here in Las Vegas, we receive the station Airl via translator. Airl brings us great music and information in a format that we can't get from a local station. Some of the information received is our only link to certain events. Airl serves a community across the U.S. and links us all together. There is enough support in Las Vegas that by way of a pledge drive, we have funded our own station that uses a translator and have continued to fund it for years now. This station upholds higher values than any of the local stations in my area. I can freely let my family listen to this station without worry of what will be said or played. Over the years, radio has become quite lax in this area, and that makes it hard on myself as a parent who doesn't want my kids listening to some of the trash that goes out over the air just because it is allowed by the majority. Thank you for taking the time to read this. Sincerely, Erik Denman
